

Housing is a basic human need.

Having somewhere to live underlies every person's health and well-being, and underpins the functioning of society as a whole.

Having the security and comfort of a home enables individuals and families to participate in work and community life, to access education and to build supportive networks.

Housing helps provide a sense of place, a sense of dignity, a sense of community.